On 1st November 2014, millions of people around the world took to the streets to express their solidarity with the heroic resistance of Kobanê. With the resistance of Kobanê - which was to become the beginning of the end of the self-proclaimed caliphate of Daesh (ISIS) - a global movement of solidarity, resistance and common struggle began to grow, which today organises itself across all borders and defends its hope. The revolution of Rojava became the hope and inspiration for people and struggles worldwide. As long as Turkish fascism is not defeated, ISIS will continue to be a threat and the Rojava Revolution will be under attack. That is why our united struggle is so important in order to
